PHH Monthly News & Updates

Project Helping Hands just closed out a big year in 2017 with a busy month of December. We launched 14 deployments in 8 different countries while also improving our internal operations and continuously striving to provide the best experience to our volunteers and patients. We are also gearing up for the multiple deployments in 2018, many of which are still actively seeking and in need of volunteers of all backgrounds!

PHH is particularly excited to announce our new Medical Director role. We are extremely happy to have someone filling this vital position and bringing us added expertise in our medical operations. We also have a deployment update, new communication platforms and more in this newsletter. Read on to get full information on PHH's month of December and outlook going forward into 2018.

Introducing Medical Director Meeta Patel

We are very excited to introduce the newest member to the Project Helping Hands team, Meeta Patel. Meeta is no stranger to PHH, as she has participated in 3 past team deployments, and will join her 4th team this month in Uganda.

Meeta gives us added expertise in the medical operations of our organization. She will be able to help us not only improve on how we conduct our treatments with our patients, but also contribute to us having more defined goals in the regions we conduct our medical care.

Meeta is an excellent addition to our PHH team and will help us improve our volunteer experience and patient treatment. We are extremely happy to continue to grow PHH by adding talented people such as Meeta who can help foster our organization and contribute to our shared mission. Stay tuned for a full profile on Meeta coming out mid-January.

Deployment Update

Project Helping Hands is gearing up for a busy 2018 with multiple deployments launching this month.

Our Uganda and Haiti teams are getting ready to launch this month, launching what we expect to be a successful and busy year for PHH. Both teams are return destinations where we look to improve and build on our past work. Both teams are led by veteran PHH members, with the Haiti team being led by Jennifer Wisniweski and the Uganda team by PHH board member Jean Proehl.

Our April 2018 deployment teams, specifically our Philippines and Peru teams are in need of volunteers. Help these teams today by volunteering or referring a friend. These deployments are well established, with PHH launching over 5 teams into both areas within the past few years. Help build on the work we've done in these regions and volunteer for a team today.
